Fewer Festa, Fiestas for downtown

'Lot of cuts.' Money for festivals getting harder to come by, some say

Three well-known downtown London festivals have been yanked from the 2014 lineup.

Festa Italiana, Fiesta London and A Festival of Poland aren't happening this year.

At least one — Festa Italiana — was called off because organizers didn't get the provincial funding they were banking on. Fiesta London, meanwhile, was cancelled because organizers weren't going to be able to offer the level of entertainment people have come to expect.

Officials from the Polish festival could not be reached for comment.

With all three centred around the Covent Garden Market, their absence will likely mean less foot traffic downtown on what had become key weekends. Fiesta London alone, which celebrates Latin America culture, generally drew up to 13,000 people.

"We will certainly miss the vitality, and we are sorry to see them go for this year," said Janette MacDonald, executive director at Downtown London, an association that works with businesses in the core.

Organizers at Festa Italiana, which would have celebrated its 13th anniversary in 2014, found out six weeks before the start of festival season that they wouldn't be getting the $30,000 grant they had been hoping for from Celebrate Ontario. It's money they had gotten in the past. When that happened, Angela Greco-Wilson, the festival co-ordinator, said there was no other choice but to cancel.

"The way we looked at it was if we can get the funding, then we can proceed, but it is getting harder and harder to arrange funding," she said.

George Perez, chair of Fiesta London, echoed that sentiment.

"I have noticed a lot of cuts in funding for these size of festivals," said Perez, who is planning on working "way in advance" on fundraising to bring his festival back for 2015.

Meet acting mayor Joe Swan

Joe Fontana's resignation meant that Coun. Joe Swan became acting mayor at 10 a.m. Thursday.

He will chair a special meeting of council on Monday. Its agenda, under "communications and petitions," includes Fontana's letter of resignation.

At that meeting, council will formally declare the mayor's seat vacant, then begin the process of appointing an interim mayor to serve until the election in the fall.

Swan has said that won't be him. Couns. Bud Polhill and Joni Baechler have said they would take the job, if it's offered.

"I'm hopeful we will unite the community, overcome this period of transition and do it well," Swan said. "We have to keep our eye on the future.

"It's critically important that we show we're able to withstand adversity and pull together and move on."

Mayor quits quietly

Final surprise.
Fontana cancels public appearance, ducks out of sight

MIKE DONACHIE
mike.donachie@metronews.ca

A remarkable career in politics ended with a surprise Thursday.

Joe Fontana, former city councillor, MP and cabinet minister, is now a former mayor, too.

Everybody expected one final show from the charismatic figure — less than a week after he was found guilty of three offences including fraud — because he announced he would have a media conference Thursday to formally address his resignation.

But, at 9:20 a.m., the last email from the mayor's office arrived, and it was a goodbye.

There would be no public appearance, no facing the media, no shouted questions.

Fontana's email said he was done with public life.

Earlier, he had fulfilled his final obligation as a civic leader with a short letter of resignation to city clerk Cathy Saunders.

It read: "In accordance with section 260(1) of the Municipal Act, 2001, this will serve as written notice of my resignation from the office of Mayor of the City of London, effective June 19, 2014, at 10:00 a.m."

That was it.

Resignation

"I understand I am required to walk this path alone, and I have learned that we will be measured not only by what we do but by how we choose to carry our burdens."

Joe Fontana, from his emailed statement
Read the full statement at metronews.ca

The part of the Municipal Act referenced only specifies that any resignation from council must be in writing to the city clerk. In the end, Fontana was all business.

The mood at city hall was subdued Thursday morning.

One member of the city clerk's staff was holding the fort at the mayor's second-floor office, but he wouldn't be back. His letter was delivered by hand, but not by Fontana, early in the morning.

"The steps I take today are difficult ones, but I do so knowing it is the best thing I can do for Londoners and my family," Fontana's email statement said.

His words included thanks and a tribute to the people of London.

Western nets leading AIDS researcher — and then some

Eric Arts. Recruit also bringing members of Ohio team to London

SCOTT TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

Already a world player in HIV/AIDS research, Western University is upping its game by recruiting one of the top minds in the field.

Eric Arts, a Western alumnus, has already transferred from prestigious Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio, to become the new chair of the Department of Microbiology and Immunology at the Schulich School of Medicine and Dentistry.

Arts and his research team at Case Western, along with the Uganda Core Lab at the Center for AIDS Research, have provided the international medical community with a better understanding of how different strains of HIV mutate in different parts of the world.

Many from his Case Western team will be joining him at the university.

Arts said he's known Western researcher Dr. Chil-Yong Kang for years. Kang has developed an HIV vaccine that has already cleared many hurdles, including initial tests on humans. His work has excited researchers around the world.

"We also have a vaccine program that we're going to try to combine with (Kang's) approach and see if we can get some synergy there," Arts said.

What that means, he said cautiously, is a possible cure for AIDS somewhere in the not-too-distant future.

Schulich dean Michael Strong is thrilled.

"Eric is internationally renowned in the AIDS/HIV area and the development of new therapies," he said.

Having both Arts and Kang ramps the school up to another level, he added.

"I hate to use the word transformative because everyone uses it, but this is one of those kinds of recruitments."

Eric Arts is what Western University calls a "game changer" in AIDS research. COURTESY WESTERN UNIVERSITY

Stepping off a roof took a very good reason

Metro reporter Scott Taylor starts his descent down the side of a City Centre tower on Thursday. MARK SPOWART/FOR METRO

No getting around it.

There I was, nearly frozen with fear as I stood on the edge of the City Centre rooftop on Thursday.

We were 26 storeys above the ground — and I have a real issue with heights. But, far below were two young girls who had overcome something a million times worse than any phobia I might have.

They'd both been granted wishes by Make-A-Wish Southwestern Ontario — and you don't get one of those unless you're up against something terribly sinister at a tender young age.

Jazzmyn went to Disney World, while Hailey swam with dolphins in the Bahamas. One was shy, the other bubbly.

"It was so special," Jazzmyn's mom Michelle Haugh said. "It was something that we'll never forget. My daughter was so sick. Without Make-A-Wish, it would've been impossible."

Hailey's mom echoed those feelings.

"It brought joy during the worst time of our lives," said Jen Cronyn. "It was like a dream come true."

That's why the organization took the media out to rappel down the building, a day before people who have raised at least $1,500 get the opportunity to experience the same thrill.

That's why I found myself dangling from a rope the thickness of my thumb more than 300 feet above the ground.

It was terrifying, exhilarating, exhausting and, ultimately, a moment in time I'll never forget.

London really is a beautiful city from up there, you know.

Two panda bears and the acting mayor are set to meet the delegation of Chinese consul general Fang Li as he visits London.

On Friday night, he's expected to learn about London institutions during an event focused on economic co-operation between the city and China. The delegation will meet acting mayor Coun. On Saturday, they will attend a ceremony for the latest tree carving to be unveiled by the Hamilton Road Area Business Association. It shows two panda bears representing the spirit of international co-operation, the association said.

Police seize drugs, weapons and two suspects in raid

Two people have been arrested after the London police guns and drugs section and emergency response unit raided a home on the city's north side.

Cops seized $1,460 worth of drugs, including marijuana, hydromorphone and crystal meth, from the Arbour Glen Crescent house. They also took a .22-calibre handgun, ammunition, knives, brass knuckles and a small amount of cash.

The handgun was reported missing from a London home in June 2012, police said.

Robert Smith, 42, and Jennifer Smith, 30, face 10 charges, including possession of drugs for the purpose of trafficking, possession of a firearm with a license and two counts of possessing stolen property.

Seniors group celebrates very first birthday

Dozens of people came together Thursday to celebrate a year of working to benefit seniors in London.

The Age Friendly London Network (AFLN) had an open house at the Kiwanis Seniors Community Centre to show the community the work they've done to implement their action plan.

The AFLN has 165 members, including representatives from 80 organizations, agencies and businesses, working on 37 strategies.

The overarching idea is to let people "age well and have opportunities to achieve their full potential."

The AFLN is working in the areas of transportation, civic participation, health services and more.

By 2035, a third of Londoners are expected to be older than 55.

Humane Society. Chef urging businesses to help feed rescued cats

A downtown chef and his coworkers are asking other businesses to get involved in an effort to help the London Humane Society.

After hearing about 28 cats and kittens rescued from a London hoarder last week, the folks at Marienbad restaurant (122 Carling St.) collected more than 100 tins of food for the humane society.

Kevin Byerley, the restaurant's chef, wants other downtown eateries to follow suit.

"I went to work and I said to myself, 'This is what I'm going to do. I'm going to go after everyone at work and we're going to get them some cat food,'" he said. "Everybody I know in hospitality has a pet.... So I hope to get other restaurants to do the same thing we did."

Byerley will pick the food up and take it to the shelter Sunday or Monday. Donations can also be dropped off at Marienbad.

Any questions?

For more information about Kevin Byerley's effort to help the Humane Society, call him at 519-872-8447.

The shelter issued an urgent plea for food and towels after taking in the cats. Executive director Judy Foster said the response has been overwhelming. "We're tremendously appreciative of everybody's generosity and we're moved by everybody's concern," she said.

The cats are doing better, she added, but some are pregnant. Foster doesn't know when they'll be ready for adoption. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

Cabinet. Sousa coming back, Wynne quiet on other changes

When Premier Kathleen Wynne unveils her revamped cabinet on Tuesday there will be a familiar face holding the chequebook.

Finance Minister Charles Sousa will continue on in his role at the treasury. Wynne has been coy about other moves in her ministries.

"I have a lot of talented people in my caucus. There may be some changes within and you may see some new people in. There are some spaces," she said this week.

Sources say Wynne will no longer serve as her own agriculture minister and that former minister and one-time leadership rival Harinder Takhar won't be returning to cabinet.

Sousa is to reintroduce his May 1 budget next month. The Liberals are not even bothering to print new copies of the spending plan and will recycle the old books.

Declined ballots. Voters beat nearly 40-year-old record at polls

More than 31,000 voters in Ontario dismissed their political choices at the polls and chose to officially forfeit their right to vote in last week's provincial election.

Elections Ontario says unofficial results show 31,399 voters opted to decline their ballots.

This is the highest amount since 1975.

The agency says it also counted 22,687 rejected ballots and 12,059 unmarked ballots from the June 12 election.

Elections Ontario spokesman Andrew Willis says a declined ballot is different from an unmarked one because it involves a voter actively informing an officer at the poll that they are choosing to decline to vote.

The officer will then mark the ballot as a declined one and count it separately from rejected or unmarked ballots.

Voter turnout edged up to 52.1 per cent, compared to 48.2 per cent in the last election in 2011.

City's smallest, oldest library gets upgrade

Glanworth. Reopening planned for historic building

MIKE DONACHIE
mike.donachie@metronews.ca

The books are to be opened again at Glanworth Branch Library, after a community campaign saved the historic building.

The building may have been tiny, but it was a big task to raise the $230,000 needed to upgrade the library for wheelchair access. That money is now in place, including $98,000 from the feds.

More was raised by London Public Library from other levels of government, foundations, corporations and hundreds of individual donations by people who wanted the branch to stay open.

"This is just a culmination of, I would say, a lot of determination," said Victoria White, president of the Glanworth Community Association. "We had a vision for the library, and we made our case for support that it needed to be kept open for the community, for heritage, for the benefit of all Londoners.

"It's been very exciting that our vision for this has been achieved. It's now a reality."

To give Glanworth Branch Library its full description, it is officially the oldest, smallest, continually operated library in London. It opened in 1912 on a different site, moving in 1923 to its current one, on Glanworth Drive off Wellington Road.

The campaign to save it has been running since August 2011.

But it's not a museum, White insisted. The library, which only closed for renovations, wasn't threatened by a lack of interest, but by a change in the law that required it to be fully accessible to people in wheelchairs.

Now that the upgrade is complete, the branch is ready for the modern age, but is also what White calls "living history."

"To me, this is something that other communities can take away and say, 'Let's not listen to the argument that things are useless and old,'" she said. "Building new isn't always the answer."

The big day

- Glenworth Branch Library has its official reopening at 1 p.m. Monday.
- Federal minister Gary Goodyear and Elgin-Middlesex-London MP Joe Preston will be there, along with people from the community.
- The library resumes its regular hours on Tuesday.

Ontario child one of five saved in child porn sting

A child from Ontario was among five rescued by police after a national child pornography investigation that targeted alleged sex offenders and resulted in hundreds of charges, the RCMP said.

Officers released the results of a four-month investigation into child exploitation that reached into every province, announcing Thursday that more than 150 people have been arrested or are under investigation.

Sgt. Michael Petrilli said almost two million images and videos have been seized, with many involving infants and toddlers.

"I cannot stress enough what these images are and what they are not," he said.

"These images are not simply children having a bubble bath. They are clearly children that are in a situation where they are being sexually assaulted."

Charges

Number of charges laid, including sexual assault, luring, possession and distribution of child pornography and voyeurism.

Investigators said two of the children who have been rescued are from British Columbia, and the other three are from Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick.

They released few details about them, but said they all knew their alleged abusers and only some of them were involved in cases of alleged pornography production.

Toronto. Air Canada flight to Brazil forced home due to unscreened passenger

An Air Canada flight to Brazil was forced to return to Toronto early Thursday due to a security breach.
THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Canadian officials were saying little Thursday about a security lapse at Pearson International airport that prompted them to order an Air Canada flight with 189 passengers en route to Brazil to return to Toronto after several hours in the air.

Air Canada said Flight 090 took off for São Paulo at around 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, unaware a passenger had boarded without proper screening.

"With the aircraft already in the air for four hours, we were notified of this and ordered by Transport Canada to have the aircraft return to Toronto," Air Canada spokesman Peter Fitzpatrick said in an email.

The plane landed at 6:30 a.m. at Pearson and was surrounded by police.

Airport authorities had said Wednesday that all departing international flights from Terminal 1 were suspended while police searched for a man who had passed through security unchecked.

Peel regional police said Thursday they were called to the airport for a "security breach" to try to identify the man who had triggered the alert. Using surveillance footage, they were able to determine he had boarded the Air Canada flight.

Officers interviewed him on the plane's return to Canada.

"We found there was no criminality involved and that was pretty much it," Const. George Tudos said. "At that point, he was allowed to reboard." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twitter. Despite positive PR potential for police, study points out pitfalls

Police forces across the country are flocking to Twitter, breaking news about arrests, soliciting tips from the public and offering real-time information during disasters.

But a University of British Columbia researcher says services like Twitter also present pitfalls as officers blur their professional and private lives.

Sociology professor Christopher Schneider has released a study that found police forces in Canada primarily use Twitter as a public-relations tool, with some forces such as Toronto police even encouraging individual officers to tweet from their own accounts.

Schneider's research identifies potential dangers, such as officers tweeting sensitive information or writing something offensive.

And he says while personal tweets might help present an officer as likable, they may also undermine the authority of police forces. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justice minister defends remarks on female judges

Gender offender. Peter MacKay had said fewer women apply for federal bench positions to stay home with kids

Federal Justice Minister Peter MacKay is defending comments he made last week about why so few women are appointed as judges in Canada.

MacKay was responding to Wednesday's Toronto Star report about an Ontario Bar Association meeting at which he was asked about the lack of women and minorities on federally appointed court benches.

MacKay answered the question by saying that women don't apply to be judges because they fear the job will take them away from their children — and that children need their mothers more than their fathers, the Star report said.

On Thursday, rather than back away from the comments, MacKay stood his ground.

"At early childhood, there's no question I think that women have a greater bond with their children," he said.

Canada needs more women to apply for judicial appointments, he continued, before walking away from reporters.

Later in the House of Commons, opposition MPs pounced on MacKay's comment, declaring them sexist and demanding an apology.

"I ask the minister to apologize to all Canadians for blaming motherhood for his abject failure to ensure that the federal court reflects the diversity of society," said Liberal MP Carolyn Bennett.

MacKay insisted, however, that he was being unfairly maligned.

"That, of course, is a complete mischaracterization of what I said, what I think, how I act and who I am," he told the Commons. Judicial appointments are made solely on the basis of merit, he added.

"With respect to minorities and women being promoted to the judiciary, I think we can all agree that government, of course, plays an important role in that, but so too do law schools and law societies, and that is exactly the message I was bringing to the Ontario Bar Association." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Conservative responses

Some of MacKay's Conservative colleagues appeared uncomfortable with his remarks.

- Calgary MP Michelle Rempel said parliamentarians should celebrate women, no matter their career choices, including staying at home.
- Ontario MP Mike Wallace refused to comment on the matter, saying it's up to MacKay to defend his own statements.
- And Quebec MP Maxime Bernier laughed off the comments, but was quick to point out that he has a "special bond" with his daughters.

Toronto armoured-car guard injured after robbery attempt ends in shootout

An armoured-car guard is in critical condition after being shot several times during a robbery attempt in Toronto early Thursday, and police say he and his partner were also targeted earlier this month.

Toronto police Staff Insp. Mike Earl said the 37-year-old guard was "ambushed" by three males as the Garda World security truck pulled up to service a TD Bank branch.

"There were numerous shots fired in this incident that lasted approximately less than a minute — 40 seconds, 45 seconds," said Earl.

He said the number of shots fired was "in the double digits."

Earl said the guard, who returned fire, took four rounds to the body and was undergoing surgery.

He said a second guard never got out of the truck — which went into lockdown — and the suspects fled on foot.

Three men, all 18 years old, were later arrested and are facing multiple charges, including attempted murder.

Police allege the same three suspects also attempted to rob a Garda World truck operated by the same pair of guards in the same area on June 5, also in the early morning hours.

"It happens to be that it's the same victims in this case that were targeted," said Earl.

"These individuals no doubt planned this and attempted this on an earlier date," he alleged. "And today they tried and made a similar attempt which resulted in a shootout."

But he said there's no indication the shooters were looking for these particular guards.

"I don't think the two individuals, the two victims, are specifically targeted — it's the actual truck or the company that's being targeted," he said.

Earl said a handgun was seized during the arrests and no other suspects are being sought. He said none of those arrested was previously known to police. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charges

In addition to attempted murder charges, Jaden Beckford, Nicholas Cross and Rashid Clarke are each charged with two counts of armed robbery, two counts of conspiracy, two counts of wearing a disguise with intent and seven firearms-related offences.

Teacher testing inmates raped

Arizona jail. Woman left alone in a room of sex offenders was stabbed, sexually assaulted, records say

A teacher at an Arizona prison was alone in a room full of sex offenders before being stabbed and sexually assaulted by a convicted rapist, according to documents obtained by The Associated Press about an attack that highlighted major security lapses at the facility.

The attack occurred Jan. 30 at the Eyman prison's Meadows Unit, which houses about 1,300 sex offenders.

The teacher was administering a high school equivalency test to about a half-dozen inmates in a classroom with no guard nearby and only a radio to call for help.

The Department of Corrections issued only a bare-bones press release after the attack, but the AP pieced together what happened based on interviews and investigatory reports obtained under the Arizona Public Records Act.

After the last of the other inmates left, Jacob Harvey asked the teacher if she could open the bathroom and then attacked her, records show. Harvey is accused of stabbing her in the head with a pen and sexually assaulting her.

The teacher told investigators that she screamed for help, but none came.

Afterward, Harvey tried to use her radio to call for help. It had apparently been changed to a channel the unit's guards didn't use, so Harvey let the woman use a phone, according to the reports. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The accused, Jacob Harvey, is serving a 30-year term for raping a woman in 2011.

- Three weeks after the rape, he assaulted another prison employee, prison records show.

Dudes, where are the women in video games?

At last week's Electronic Entertainment Expo, video game developers hyped upcoming titles featuring super-soldiers, assassins, bank robbers and secret agents. They all had one thing in common: They're men.

The continued lack of female protagonists in games shown off at E3 highlighted an issue that continues to loom over the video game industry. Why is it still such a dude fest?

"It's boring that we're continuing to have this conversation," said Belinda Van Sickle, president and CEO of the advocacy group Women in Games International.

"I started in the industry nine years ago and it seems like we're having the same conversation with the same responses from industry insiders, gamers and the media. It needs to be more substantive."

While there were a few notable exceptions at this year's E3 — like thrill seeker Lara Croft in Rise of the Tomb Raider and sci-fi survivor Amanda in Alien: Isolation — male characters still far outnumber female protagonists in video games. Everyone has a different answer as to why the issue persists.

A scene from the Ubisoft video game Tom Clancy's Rainbow Six: Siege. Female protagonists are still in short supply in games. COURTESY UBISOFT

"The more women we have playing games, the more we will be able to have a balance between women and men in the games," said Yves Guillemot, CEO of Ubisoft.

Ubisoft came under the most fire at E3 after revealing that the playable characters in the co-op modes of both its historical adventure Assassin's Creed: Unity and shoot-'em-up Far Cry 4 would all be men. Despite the fact previous instalments of those series featured female avatars, the developers cited technical limitations for the lack of girl power.

"Any character you create requires extra resources, gender aside," explained Eric Hirshberg, CEO of Activision Publishing. "Any character that has a different look, voice, mechanics or way of moving, requires more work.... But that's not a reason not to do something. We create lots of different characters with lots of different movements." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans have come a long way from hunting and gathering food

Evolution or devolution?
People in the U.S. don't even have to wander the chilly grocery aisles to buy food anymore — there is a buffet of firms who will do it for them

Americans now have the option of letting the groceries come to them. Several companies are offering same-day delivery services. SPENCER PLATT/GETTY IMAGES FILE

If you dread making supermarket runs, you're in luck.

Same-day grocery delivery services from Google, Instacart and Postmates are expanding into more cities around America, delivering everything from cereal to bottled water to toilet paper from nearby stores.

The Associated Press tried out all three services, and they're fast, easy to use and way more convenient than waiting in the checkout line. All three deliver from local stores in the U.S., as well as some big national chains, such as Whole Foods, Costco and Target.

The services across America are different from more established grocery delivery companies such as FreshDirect, Peapod and AmazonFresh, because they don't actually sell groceries directly to you. Google Shopping Express, Instacart and Postmates merely send someone to stores in your neighbourhood. It works like this: You select what you want online or on an app, choose a delivery time and the service will deliver the items to your door.

But convenience comes at a price. The delivery charges can vary greatly. Google and Instacart offer flat rates, while Postmates' fees depend on the distance of the delivery. And you may want to tip the delivery people. All three companies say it's not necessary, but Instacart and Postmates allows you to add a tip while shopping on the app or website.

Dov Charney. Montrealer who rose to infamy as head of American Apparel is out

The board of American Apparel voted to oust founder Dov Charney as chairman and notified him of its intent to remove him as president and chief executive, the clothing chain says.

The move means Charney was suspended as president and CEO of the Los Angeles-based chain pending a contractually required 30-day period before he can be terminated.

The board's statement said that the proposed firing is for cause, and cited an "ongoing investigation into alleged misconduct," without giving details.

"We take no joy in this, but the board felt it was the right thing to do," said Allan Mayer, one of two board members appointed co-chairmen to replace Charney. "Dov Charney created American Apparel, but the Company has grown much larger than any one individual and we are confident that its greatest days are still ahead." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Aboriginal mukluk company has leg up on competition

An aboriginal-owned Canadian mukluk and moccasin company has been named Canada's fastest-growing footwear company by PROFIT 500's list.

Manitobah Mukluks ranked 201 out of the 500 fastest-growing companies.

"People are voting with their dollars to support an aboriginal-owned business that shares success and builds capacity in the community," said Sean McCormick, Manitobah Mukluks founder and CEO.

Aside from making footwear, the company aims to impact aboriginal communities using endeavors like aboriginal-focused hiring practices, reviving traditional crafts and working with artists and elders in the company's boardroom.

1 Futbol anyone? You can always count on the World Cup to elicit some hardcore patriotism. After all, what could be more pride-inducing than watching professional soccer players from different countries play for other countries to millions of fans cheering vehemently for the nation they came from but no longer live in?

2 Scientific breakthrough. A University of Toronto research centre has developed a groundbreaking scheme that could cure major diseases plaguing humanity for ages. It's daring. It's radical. It's called ... sharing! How does it work? Imagine someone in Europe makes an experimental breakthrough, but is missing one crucial element. Enter U of T's recent genetic advancements, combine them, and it's the peanut-butter cup of life-saving science. Sounds gimmicky to me. It'll never catch on.

4 Runneth over. The L.A. Kings won the Stanley Cup and all I can think about is how greedy that city can be. They already have Hollywood, warm weather, hot celebrities, the Oscars, the Kardashians and Donald Sterling. Do they really need our hockey? Winnipeg has none of that. Let's give THEM the cup. #LAKings

5 Pass it over. A 22-year-old threw a football over a Michigan prison wall. Unfortunately, it missed its unknown recipient and landed between two security fences. Officers recovered the ball, which was stuffed with weed, heroin, tobacco and three cellphones with chargers. He was charged with three counts of furnishing contraband to inmates, and shattered his dream of ever playing in the NFL. #dumbcriminals

6 Not-so-free agent. The San Antonio Spurs won their fifth NBA title in 15 years with a convincing victory over repeat champs the Miami Heat. Now, we shift our focus to LeBron James as he fields offers from other teams with championship potential that will no longer be able to afford the players they already have. #SpursNation

7 Mayoral theatrics. Actors from all over Canada flocked to Toronto's legendary sketch-comedy residence, The Second City, to audition for Rob Ford The Musical: The Birth of a Ford Nation. As a former Second Citizen myself, I assure you that the position won't be cast based on physical traits. The role will be assigned to the performer who best embodies the elements that bring truth to the character. Also, very few physical props are used, so any crack-smoking will be mimed. Can't promise the same for the "drunken stupors."

8 Eastbound for sound. Music lovers looking for a brief Canadian getaway are invited to join me next week for the Festival International de Jazz de Montréal. Montreal is beautiful in the summertime and even better with performances from Aretha Franklin, Elvis Costello, Michael Bublé, Nikki Yanofsky and I'm especially looking forward to hearing Snoop Dogg rap in French. #FIJM

9 Final broadcast. The world mourns the loss of entertainment icon Casey Kasem this week. I'd like to send out this long-distance dedication to the man whose voice taught us new words on Sesame Street, devoured Scooby snacks as Shaggy, and counted down the hits for us each week. Though his feet may no longer be on the ground, may he always be reaching for the stars. #RIP

The future will be hoverized

Mark De Roche says the company hopes their hovercrafts will have recreational applications. "Our goal is to set up air parks where people can be trained in a scenic environment as the hovercraft doesn't damage land in the same way that a car does," he says. COURTESY AEROFEX CORPORATION

Introducing Aero-X

Sci-fi hovers into reality

A sci-fi hover bike, akin to the flying forest speeders from Star Wars: Return of the Jedi, is set to take off by 2017. The Aero-X, designed by Californian-based Aerofex Corporation, uses ducted rotors in a similar fashion to a helicopter but with far greater control. The aircraft, which costs $85,000 US and can fly at 72 km/h, will only hover to heights of 4.5 metres, so that a pilot's licence isn't required. Chief technology officer Mark De Roche tells Metro why we'll all be riding into the future on a hovercraft.

Did you decide to design this after watching Star Wars Episode VI: Return of the Jedi? (Laughs) I hate to disappoint but I've only seen one of the Star Wars movies and it didn't influence the design.

In the James Bond movie Die Another Day hovercraft float over minefields. Are the military interested? It's not going to be used by the military at this stage. But the Aero-X can be used for ranching, crop dusting, and search and rescue.

Is it like riding a hovercraft or a motorcycle? It's probably closer to a motorcycle. You're in a dynamic air environment. At first your eyes are fixed on the ground but when you get used to focusing on the horizon and adapt to the winds, you're transported into a different element. You bank into a turn based on the wind like sailing — you get an intuitive sense about the wind.

Do you require a helmet? I didn't wear one for quite some time and the guys and I decided it was reckless. We were in the desert so I didn't feel much need but it's likely depending on the laws of a country whether a helmet will be required. METRO

We've all been there. You go in for the handshake and it passes you by. Or, maybe, you end up in some sort of mangled handshake mess — it happens — even at the World Cup.

Only difference is for Canadian referee Joe Fletcher, his missed handshake was televised in front of millions of viewers, but you can't tell, the man is as smooth as butter.

Next time you find yourself in the middle of an uncomfortable greeting, take a cue from Fletcher. (Via michael gallo/YouTube)

Jersey Boys opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Based on the Broadway hit of the same name, Jersey Boys begins in 1951 Belleville, N.J. and follows childhood friends Frankie Valli (John Lloyd Young who won a Tony for his performance of Valli on stage), Tommy DeVito (Vincent Piazza) and Nick Massi (Michael Lomenda) from the streets to the studio and with the addition of songwriter and keyboardist Bob Gaudio (Erich Bergen), from clubs to concert halls as the Four Seasons, one of the biggest-selling acts in rock history. Hits like Big Girls Don't Cry, Walk Like A Man and Can't Take My Eyes Off You kept them at the top of the charts — but ego, infighting, and money troubles blew them apart.

Go for the tunes, not the theatrics.

Clint Eastwood-helmed rags-to-riches music tale lacks realism, but is saved by a bunch of earworms that will have audiences tapping their toes

Richard: Mark, I thought director Clint Eastwood set up the story of the band well enough. From their hardscrabble beginnings to the height of their success, it's a rags-to-riches story and when it focuses on the four band members, it works.

Unfortunately it takes a cast of characters to tell the tale, and Eastwood seems content to allow his supporting actors to go off-the-charts theatrical. By the time the end credits roll, it's clear that the movie is a caricature of a real-life story.

Nothing feels completely genuine, as if the theatricality of the stage version bled into the film.

Mark: Richard, I think I know when the film goes off the rails.

When the band breaks up two-thirds of the way through, everything that follows feels forced, cheesy, and the emotions play a bit phoney.

But I still enjoyed the movie. I saw the theatrical version twice and I'm a big fan of the group.

The music makes a bigger impact in the stage version, but some of the characters play better in the film.

None of the acting is stellar, but it's always fun to watch Christopher Walken do his "good mobster" schtick, and Erich Bergen as Bob Gaudio, the brains of the group, really stood out for me.

RC: The songs are undeniably catchy and well performed by a cast, three-quarters of which come from the various incarnations of the stage show.

They are earworms that sound authentic, by and large thanks to Young who perfectly mimics Valli's soaring multi-octave falsetto voice. The bulk of the movie, unfortunately, doesn't soar as high as Young's voice. The Broadway show is basically a rock concert with a story. The big-screen treatment requires more.

MB: I thought it did — in places. The feuding between the members of the group worked better in the movie, but the opening scenes of Italian boys in da hood has been done many times before, and went on way too long. Note that it takes one full hour before they sing their first hit, Sherry.

The movie filled in a lot of texture about the Jersey mob and life on the road that wasn't in the play, but you know, Richard, it's about a rock group in the 1960s, so I don't even have to like it to like it.

RC: I liked the style, the songs, but I wanted more from the characters. The songs will stay in your head; the characters won't.

MB: And after Valli got his name upfront of the group, shouldn't it technically have been Frankie Valli and the Three Seasons?

Think Like A Man Too. Screenwriting duo who brought you the first Think Like A Man talk about sequels

Think Like a Man Too opens this Friday. CONTRIBUTED

Screenwriting duo Keith Merryman and David A. Newman enjoyed a certain amount of unsupervised freedom while adapting Steve Harvey's self-help book Think Like a Man into the 2012 film. But when it came to making a sequel after the film turned into one of that summer's surprise hits, they found the powers that be were a tad more interested in how the second one would come together.

What was the difference in working environments between the first film and this one?

Newman: I think we had the gift of freedom, in a way. The book had fans, and Steve Harvey did a great job of presenting the book on Oprah, so we knew there was a fan base for the book, but there have been a lot of self-help books that have fan bases that, you know, you never know. I'll put it this way, it never occurred to us it was going to do what it did in the box office. We never even heard the words "No. 1 at the box office" until that day.

Merryman: Never even talked about it, never thought it would happen.

Newman: And I think we all were thinking it's our $12-million movie that we all really love — yay! And maybe we weren't aware of Kevin (Hart)'s fan base or (producer)Will Packer's ability to get the word out, but I think everyone was really stunned from that point. And then after that The Best Man Holiday got green-lit after Think Like a Man, a lot of things have happened. But with success comes a whole different set of expectations on this one. So there were more eyes on the prize from the very beginning, more opinions. I wouldn't say cooks in the kitchen, but there were definitely more ideas thrown at us than there were the first time.

Merryman: The first one, we were basically told, "Steve Harvey has to be a character, and the book has to be a character — do whatever you want." Literally, that was it.

Newman: And in this one there were obviously some directives. Obviously Kevin's a much bigger star, so it would make sense to play to that and bump his role up.

Merryman: But it was intimidating because it was a big responsibility, you know, the way that people really connected to the first one. And with the sequel, our goal was to, despite all the craziness and campiness, to still root it in the relationships, which is why it's dramatically framed with them.

Are there different professional or diplomatic positions you have to assume when you're dealing with those new cooks in the kitchen? Like more smiling and nodding politely?

Newman: Yeah. I laugh because I think everyone thinks they're the reason the first one was such a hit, and I think everyone was. Like, every single person was a reason why it was a hit, from Will (director) to Tim (Story) to all of the actors and hopefully to us, too, but at the end of the day you have to have a great script if you're going to do it again. So there were a few different hats to wear from the very beginning. We were just concerned because we didn't want the entire tone of the movie to change into a different genre.

How about using Las Vegas as a setting?

Newman: Even The Hangover can't out-Hangover The Hangover. There's been three, and we're not that. So we really decided to do what it's like when you go to Vegas, where it's like the conflicts are somebody wants to do this and somebody wants to do that, you're automatically supposed to feel like you're having the best time of all time.

Merryman: And if you don't, you feel like you failed.

Newman: And then our main premise was it's the greatest place in the world for men and women to get their freak on — unless they go together as couples, which gave everything a conflict and comedy.

I couldn't help noticing the lamest character in your movie keeps suggesting they go see Jersey Boys, which you're opening against.

Newman: I know, I know. We didn't have time to go to Vegas, so we started doing research on the Internet, and everything was Criss Angel and Jersey Boys, and so we wrote it into the script. As soon as you get off the airplane there it's like, Jersey Boys! And I just thought Bennett would want to see it and know that it had eight Tony nominations. And it cracks me up that we're now opening the exact same weekend, and it's within the first eight minutes of our movie.

Love and survival in Litchfield prison

Orange is the New Black. The show's stars talk Piper's new tough-girl persona and what Crazy Eyes is learning about love

MIRIAM OSBORNE

Taylor Schilling, left, and Uzo Aduba catch a flick inmate-style on Orange is the New Black. NETFLIX

Orange is the New Black Season 2 opened with a vengeance and never turned back.

In the first season we're introduced to a timid, naive Piper Chapman (Taylor Schilling), an upper middle class, well-educated 32-year-old yuppie finding her way through prison life after being sentenced to 15 months for carrying drug money 10 years prior.

But in Season 2, months into her sentence, Chapman survives on her newfound reputation as a thug after Season 1 ended with her beating a fellow inmate senseless.

This Chapman has a better understanding of what it takes to survive in prison.

"There's a shedding of a skin," Schilling says of her character's hardened shell this season. "There's nothing she can do but adapt."

Chapman is not the only inmate at Litchfield prison who's flexing her muscles. Things get dark in Season 2, and no character gets as dark as Suzanne "Crazy Eyes" Warren, played by Uzo Aduba.

Vee, a sort of den mother and repeat inmate at the prison — and possibly the most terrifying character on television — wants to run the prison, and with that, all the contraband coming in. So she taps into Crazy Eyes' vulnerability, using her need to be respected to do so.

Acting as Vee's enforcer gives Crazy Eyes a sense of purpose. Aduba points out that Vee is one of only two fellow inmates (Chapman being the other) who refers to her by her proper name as Suzanne.

"It's like she feels seen by them," Aduba says. "Vee gives her time and dignity by saying that her job on the work crew was respectable, and that gave her something that she hadn't really been given by any other inmates."

Without giving away too many spoilers for those viewers taking their time to get through this season (seriously, watch it, so the rest of us who have can stop talking in hushed tones!), Crazy Eyes takes on her role as Vee's "muscle" with all the vigour you'd expect of someone named Crazy Eyes. Though Aduba sees it a bit differently.

"She was protecting what she loves. It's always with good intentions she does these things. That was how I was able to not judge her, because her thing isn't that she's enraged, she's just in love."

Orange is the New Black touches on a lot of things: racism, white privilege, sexuality, transgender issues, religion.

Above all, what comes out is the human instinct to survive at any cost, our basic need to fit in, be respected and, Aduba is quick to add, be loved.

"But Suzanne is definitely starting to learn as the season winds down that love hurts a whole lot. Sometimes you give all of yourself to it and see very little return."

Sound Check

ALAN CROSS

Parisian dance music, maybe the most Canadian duet ever, and a cow serenade? Sure, why not.

Can You Hear Me/Singtank

A brother-sister outfit from France created a stylish video for this summery reggae song that also comes with a link so you can buy all the fashion seen in the clip. Clever.

So Easy/Emm Gryner and Chris Hadfield

Canada's Most Famous Singing Astronaut™ duets with Emm on a song they co-wrote together on the porch of Hadfield's cottage. A lovely summer song.

Cattle Dance Party/Moon Hooch

I kind of feel bad for these guys. They composed a jazz piece for a herd of cattle but the moment they began playing it, everyone started stampeding away.

I have to use a magnifying glass just to read the menus for this mobile version of the popular, aim-and-laugh wasteland shooter. The high-resolution graphics look great, but they make everything cramped, including the controls. This is a problem given that you're always running and shooting, non-stop. With manic, manipulative robots and psychopaths spouting Shakespearean insults, fans might say it's worth it, and admittedly upgrades eventually make things easier, but I found it merely drove me to seek out the console version instead. Squinting, even while laughing, isn't fun. KRIS ABEL

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Why you gotta be so mean? Yahoos throw bottles at Taylor's house

Taylor Swift has some rather angry detractors out there, and apparently they like to take their anger out on her Watch Hill, Rhode Island vacation home. Three Connecticut residents were arrested last weekend on misdemeanour charges for throwing beer bottles at the home and shouting "F--- you!" and making rude hand gestures at security guards, according to the Westerly Sun. The trio "extended their middle fingers" at the guards, though one suspect insisted to authorities that they were making a hand gesture Swift uses in one of her music videos as a way to pay tribute to her. All three were charged with misdemeanour disorderly conduct and released. Swift was not at the property at the time of the incident. METRO WORLD NEWS

It's London calling for LiLo! Starlet embraces new city (and a new beau?)

Lindsay Lohan apparently has been wasting no time getting her new London life up and running — including her love life. The starlet has been linked to British actor Tom Bilkey, with the pair spotted out and about. But Bilkey insists they're just friends. "I met Lindsay four years ago through mutual friends when I was working in L.A.," he tells the Daily Mirror. "She's actually really down-to-earth and cool. I think she likes the scene over here." Whether or not Lohan is getting romantic with Bilkey, she's definitely falling for London. "Lindsay's convinced everyone in America is out to get her, but she's had the opposite experience in London," a source previously told Radar Online. "She loves British culture and says people have treated her with respect for the first time in years. Now she's looking into the immigration process and planning a full-time relocation."

Harrison Ford

Don't tell Harrison Ford to break a leg! (He already did)

Harrison Ford is recuperating after surgery to heal a broken leg suffered during production on Star Wars: Episode VII.

The actor's publicist said Thursday that Ford is doing well after surgery and will soon begin rehab. Ford was injured a week ago during filming of the much-anticipated sequel at Pinewood Studios outside of London.

The accident involved a spacecraft door falling on the 71-year-old actor's leg. Ford's Han Solo pilots the Millennium Falcon, which is returning in Episode VII.

Disney has said that shooting is continuing while Ford recuperates. He's expected to be sidelined up to two months.

Maybe Kanye's not such a groomzilla after all?

Kanye West and Annie Leibovitz have issued a joint statement clarifying comments the rapper made recently about the photographer.

The Thursday statement says West's comments Tuesday at the Cannes Lions international advertising festival regarding Leibovitz's availability to shoot his wedding "have been taken out of context and sensationalized."

West was frustrated that he couldn't secure Leibovitz's services for his marriage to Kim Kardashian last month, the statement says, but he was not assigning blame. Their representatives had been negotiating, but did not reach an agreement by the time of the wedding. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Word

The new King of Spain begins his royal reign

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Spain has a new king! Also a new queen, two new princesses (well, they were princesses already), and a retired ex-king. All hail King Felipe VI, Queen Letizia, and Princesses Leonor and Sofia.

"But wait," I'm sure you're saying. "A European royal family did something? Where are the commemorative plates? Why aren't I watching an E! special about it?" That's because the Spanish royal family rolls a little differently than our pals the Windsors — especially now, when Spain's economy is so bad. Felipe has promised to focus on austerity, and he set a good example with his coronation, which may have been the least fancy coronation since the Middle Ages — instead of a big, splashy ceremony with an international guest list and lots of parties, Felipe opted for a slimmed down event with relatively few guests and little in the way of pomp.

That's not the only unusual thing about this coronation: The reason Felipe has ascended to the throne in the first place is because his father, 76-year-old King Juan Carlos, decided to abdicate. Juan Carlos, who helped moved the country from fascism to democracy, has always been extremely popular with his subjects, but of late the Spanish royal family's reputation has taken some hits. Felipe's older sister Princess Cristina is embroiled in a tax scandal, and many are questioning why a cash-strapped nation needs to foot the bill for a royal family at all, even a relatively cheap one.

Fair point! Here is my counterpoint: Look at those adorable little princesses. You don't want them to have to grow up and get jobs, do you?

To say Natalie MacLean loves Canadian wine would be an understatement. The award-winning blogger has been an ardent supporter of our home-pressed juice since starting her popular wine review site nataliemaclean.com.

For the last few weeks, MacLean has been hosting The Great Canadian Wine Match: an online contest to find Canada's ultimate barbecue wine. Wine lovers across the country have nominated their favourites and have been encouraging others to vote for their picks. Voting ends today, so if you want to have your say, head to her site.

I always struggle when it comes to mentioning Canadian wines in this column. Popular in their own provinces, most don't have national distribution. That is starting to change.

Larger markets have recently received an allotment of Benjamin Bridge's 2013 Nova 7 ($24.99 - $25.95). Nova Scotia's aromatic, signature wine tastes like summer in a glass, with a light fizz lifting its zesty, citrus flavours.

Strawberry-Balsamic Glazed Pork Tenderloin.

Summer starts tomorrow and this little red berry is the star of the season

When you discover foods that have a natural affinity for one another, it's easy to find numerous excuses to enjoy them together.

One such combo is strawberries and balsamic vinegar. Both sport assertively sweet, nicely acidic flavours that not only work well together, but also pair up wonderfully with so many other foods.

For grilling season, pork tenderloin that is slathered with a strawberry-balsamic glaze just makes sense. For optimal flavour, the pork gets hit with the strawberry-balsamic blend three times.

1. In blender, combine strawberries, oil, vinegar, honey, garlic, salt and pepper. Puree until smooth. Pour about a third of mix into saucepan and set aside. Pour another third of mix into large non-reactive bowl. Pour the remaining sauce into a small bowl.

2. Slice pork tenderloins into 1/2-inch rounds. A few at a time, place rounds between sheets of plastic wrap, then use the meat mallet or rolling pin to carefully pound the rounds to an even thickness of about 1/4 inch. Place the pounded rounds in the non-reactive bowl with the sauce, turning to coat evenly. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

3. After the pork has marinated for 20 minutes, heat a grill to medium-high.

4. Place saucepan of strawberry-balsamic sauce over medium-low heat on the stovetop. Bring to a simmer and cook, stirring frequently, for 8 to 10 minutes, or until thickened. Cover the pan and remove from the heat.

5. When the pork has finished marinating, use an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs to oil the grill grates. Place the pork rounds on the grill. Baste the pork with the sauce set aside in the small bowl. Grill for 3 to 4 minutes, then flip the rounds, baste again and cook for another 3 to 4 minutes.

6. Divide pork among 6 serving plates; spoon simmered sauce overtop. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Colombia through after Greece and Japan play to draw

Reduced to 10 men after captain Kostas Katsouranis was sent off in the 38th minute with his second booking, Greece held on for a 0-0 draw with Japan on Thursday that keeps both alive in Group C and sends rival Colombia to the next round of the World Cup.

Both teams inserted new strikers in search of goals and a first victory, but ultimately the goal was survival and both did that with one match left in group play. Japan would have been eliminated with a loss.

Once Katsouaranis was sent off after a rough challenge on Makoto Hasebe, Greece withdrew into a defensive setup and held firm.

Earlier in the day in Brasilia, Colombia was driven on by a partisan crowd that turned the Estadio Nacional into a sea of yellow as James Rodriguez and substitute Juan Quintero scored in a devastating six-minute spell in the second half to beat Ivory Coast 2-1.

England twice bitten by Suarez

Big-time brace. Upon return from injury, controversial Uruguayan striker preys on shaky England's back line

Luis Suarez scored twice to give Uruguay a 2-1 victory over England at the World Cup on Thursday, making an instant impact in his return from injury to revive his team's Group D campaign.

The Liverpool striker, who hadn't played since undergoing surgery on his left knee last month, lashed in the winner in the 85th minute, after seeing his first-half opener cancelled out by Wayne Rooney.

After surprisingly losing its Group D opener to Costa Rica, Uruguay's qualifying chances have now been given a major lift, while England's hopes of advancing to the round of 16 are in real jeopardy after its worst World Cup start in more than half a century.

Suarez seemed to revel in inflicting England's second successive loss in Brazil, having been punished twice by the country's Football Association for misdemeanours, serving bans for racism and biting in the Premier League.

Of Uruguay's six efforts on target, five were from Suarez — including the two that beat goalkeeper Joe Hart as England's slack defending was exploited.

"I dreamt this," Suarez said at the Itaquerao Stadium in Sao Paulo. "I'm enjoying this moment, because of all I suffered, the criticism I received. So, there you go."

By taking his World Cup tally to five goals, Suarez ensured that Rooney's first-ever goal in 10 matches on football's biggest stage was in vain.

Rooney tapped the ball home from close range in the 75th minute after connecting with Glen Johnson's pass. Having also lost against Italy, England now faces the prospect of not advancing from the group stage for the first time since 1958.

"We are a team that is making progress but results decide everything and both results have been negative," coach Roy Hodgson said.

"Where does it leave us? I don't know. I don't quite know."

Tigers halt Royals short of sweep

MLB. Detroit denies Kansas City its 11th straight win, pulls within to half-game of division lead

With his team in need of a victory and an anxious crowd waiting, Joe Nathan took the mound and struck out the last three hitters of the game.

Any win would have meant a lot to the Detroit Tigers, but Nathan's performance made this one a little more encouraging.

On Thursday

Tigers	Royals

"It was still a matter of just coming to work and trying to get better, trying to figure out what's going on," Nathan said. "We've been grinding."

Nathan breezed through the ninth inning, and the Tigers ended Kansas City's 10-game winning streak with a 2-1 victory over the Royals on Thursday. J.D. Martinez hit a tiebreaking homer in the fourth for the Tigers, who avoided a four-game sweep and pulled within a half-game of the AL Central-leading Royals.

Anibal Sanchez (4-2) allowed five hits and a walk in seven innings, keeping the Kansas City offence quiet even though he failed to strike out a batter. Joba Chamberlain pitched the eighth, and Nathan finished for his 14th save in 18 chances.

Nathan's ERA is still an unsightly 6.31, but he's been working with his pitching coach and catchers, and hopes some mechanical tweaking will help. He struck out Billy Butler to start the ninth — the Kansas City designated hitter argued the called third strike — and Salvador Perez then went down swinging. With the crowd on its feet, Nathan fanned Lorenzo Cain to end it.

"That looked like the Joe Nathan I've faced for years," Butler said. "All those times with the Twins and then with Texas — the one with a few hundred saves and all those All-Star games. He's had some tough moments in his career, but that looked like the same guy today." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jason Spezza GETTY IMAGES FILE

Sens won't let Spezza go cheaply

Bryan Murray wants to do right by Jason Spezza, but not at the expense of the Ottawa Senators.

Ottawa's general manager said he's had discussions about trading his captain but will not make a move unless he can get an acceptable return.

"I don't think when you trade a player of Jason's calibre that you ever win," Murray said on Thursday. "I think we try to get the best return we can and then if it's not satisfactory we can't do it and he has a year left on his contract."

The going price

In return for Jason Spezza, it's believed Bryan Murray would like to get a top-six player, a highly ranked prospect and perhaps a first-round pick at the upcoming NHL Entry Draft.

Spezza had 23 goals and 66 points in 75 games last season. He has 251 goals and 687 points in 686 career NHL games.

Spezza has one year remaining on his contract with a cap hit of $7 million US. He has a limited no-trade clause, which allowed him to submit a list of 10 teams where he would not want to play. It's believed he would prefer to move out of Canada and the glare of the spotlight that comes from playing north of the border. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joel Embiid. Coveted NBA prospect scheduled for surgery on fractured foot

Kansas centre Joel Embiid, one of the top prospects in the upcoming NBA draft, has a stress fracture in his right foot and is scheduled to have surgery on Friday.

Embiid's agent, Arn Tellem, made the announcement on Thursday, a week before the draft. Tellem says Embiid fractured the navicular bone in his right foot and will be unable to participate in any additional workouts. He also will not attend the draft in New York.

Embiid was widely considered to be the favourite for the No. 1 overall draft pick held by the Cleveland Cavaliers.

But Embiid missed a chunk of last season with a back injury as well and that, combined with the foot injury, could cause him to slide on draft night. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heat president blasts critics. Riley calls for naysayers to 'get a grip'

Pat Riley walked into the room to begin his end-of-season availability annoyed, and armed with history.

There have been franchises that have enjoyed prolonged runs of greatness during his 45 years as a player, coach and executive in the NBA — the Lakers, Celtics, Bulls, Spurs and his Miami Heat among them — and Thursday Riley pointed out each shares a trait.

They all lost sometime.

"I think everybody," the Heat president said moments after smacking the table to begin the news conference, "needs to get a grip."

With that, Riley was off and running on a message-sending session that lasted nearly an hour. No players were there, but they surely heard his themes: He saw his team's mental fatigue during the year, but doesn't accept it; he isn't willing to let Miami fall from the ranks of the NBA elite, and the organization will do what it can to keep LeBron James, Chris Bosh and Dwyane Wade together. Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Money and possessions are important, but don't make too big an issue of them. Over the next few days you should concentrate more on relationships, especially family.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You may be tempted to interfere in someone's personal situation but no good will come of it. You cannot do everything for everyone, so decide who is on your help list and let others learn from their own mistakes.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
The Sun is about to leave your birth sign and it won't be long before you notice a difference in the direction your life seems to be taking. The important thing is that you don't try to stop the inevitable.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
There is an urgency about you now that has been lacking in recent weeks and it will grow many times stronger when the Sun moves into your sign tomorrow. Your life is about to take a huge turn for the better.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
If you play hard to get today you may send people the wrong sort of message. For one thing they may believe you no longer care, which of course isn't true. Make yourself available.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
When the Sun changes signs tomorrow it's quite likely you will become aware of a better way to reach your aims and fulfill your desires. There's no rush, so take your time.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
It's good that you have the confidence to take risks but not good if you take them wildly. As the Sun nears the career angle of your chart make sure you don't do anything silly at work.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You may be tempted to end a relationship that has been going through stormy seas but is that really a wise move? To be on the safe side wait until the Sun changes signs tomorrow. You attitude may also change.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
The most important thing now is that you do not allow vague fears to hold you back from what you are planning. A number of things can go wrong but even if they do the consequences won't be so bad.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You seem to have resigned yourself to the idea that you will have to take a loss on something that hasn't been working out the way you planned. Don't be too hasty.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Can you trust what other tell you? You cannot. They may not be trying to trick you but there is reason to believe they themselves have been deceived, so err on the side of caution.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Fate will take its chosen path no matter what you may think about it, so go with the flow and adapt to what happens. One of the best times of the year is about to begin. You have nothing to fear. SALLY BROMPTON
